

In April 2017, Prof. Herman Depypere succeeded to finish accrual of the most recent ECP chemopreventive study in young female BRCA1&2 carriers. The pivotal proof of concept was drawn up in 2014.

The idea of Prof. José Russo, that an early full term pregnancy can prevent against breast cancer, has therefore been translated into primary prevention after a preparation of almost 25 years. Both speakers will highlight the results of this key research based on complex biomolecular datasets and established intermediate risk markers. Other successful preventive trials have been carried out elsewhere and ready for analysis.

Antiestrogens and medication for chronic diseases complete our medicinal approach to breast cancer prevention. But diet and physical activity is something every woman can practice herself. Newest data on individual risk reduction will be highlighted.

It is fair to say that science is on the edge of implementing vaccination, drugs, and lifestyle into effective prevention of breast cancer.

The meeting aims at providing a comprehensive actual summary of significant initiatives in primary prevention and how this data is perceived by epidemiologists, researchers, clinicians, health care, and population. The outcomes of this meeting will constitute the basis of further trial design and implementation efforts towards the entire population.

Think Pink

Through our website, flyers, communications, meetings and targeted actions, ThinkPink asks attention to breast cancer and screening.

We inform, sensitize, support scientific and clinical research and raise funding for health care.

ECP

The European Cancer Prevention was founded in 1981 by European scientists, among them the first President Prof. Michael J Hill. They took advantage of the wide geographical variations to study the origin of cancer with only one passionate mission in mind: to decrease the yearly number of new cancer patients.

Now the organization has a world-wide network of clinicians, researchers, and collaborators. Scientific work is published in the European Journal of Cancer Prevention.

Support

The organization of the meeting has been possible through many instances among them

- ECP
- Think Pink
- Bioncise

Private support

During the meeting, private sponsors will be honored for making the breast cancer study possible.
